Operation JumpStart

The Corporate & Community Education Department of Black River Technical College, in partnership with Winrock International and the Arkansas Women’s Business Center, will be offering Operation JumpStart (OJS). OJS is a 6-week hands-on, microenterprise training program designed to help entrepreneurs test the feasibility of their business idea. In OJS, students will examine their business idea from every angle and discover whether the life of an entrepreneur is right for them.

Operation JumpStart: First Step is a comprehensive curriculum which includes development, market research, market analysis, financial projections, and case studies. The curriculum walks aspiring business owners through the feasibility process and gives them the opportunity to complete a business feasibility plan. This feasibility plan will help students decide if their business concept would prosper before investing money. Additionally, John Riggins, President of The Riggins Group, Inc., will be available to periodically counsel and tutor OJS students. Riggins is a market strategist and product management practitioner, who helps entrepreneurs and small businesses launch successfully and grow profitability.

Graduates will have the opportunity to compete for $1000 in seed money to go towards their start-up or expansion. Trisa Morrison, our winning graduate from Fall 2012, credited the OJS training program for giving her the guidance and assistance to take her business to the next level. Morrison is the owner of the Purple Turtle Gallery, a business focusing on custom framing and casual artwork in downtown Pocahontas.

Operation JumpStart will begin on Monday, March 2 and conclude on Thursday, April 16. Classes will be held from 6-9 p.m. on the Black River Technical College, Pocahontas campus. No classes will be held on March 23 or 26. Tuition for this course will be $99. Students who complete the course and submit a feasibility plan will be eligible for a tuition refund of $50. Deadline to register is Monday, February 16. For additional information or to register e-mail zebulon.blansett@blackrivertech.edu or call 870-248-4180.

Personnel Changes

Julie Edington, Director of Human Resources, at Black River Technical College has announced personnel changes for the Pocahontas campus in the Office of Administration.

James Thielemier of Pocahontas has been promoted to Skilled Tradesman-Electricity in Maintenance. Thielemier is a Master Electrician. He has worked at BRTC as Maintenance Assistant for the past 10 years. Before coming to BRTC he was self-employed.

John Janetos of Maynard has been promoted to Food Preparation Coordinator. Janetos worked for BRTC as Institutional Services Assistant in Maintenance before accepting his new position. Prior to joining BRTC Janetos worked as chef and manager of Green Tomato Café in Pocahontas, 501 Club in Jonesboro, and Josie’s Steakhouse in Waldenburg.

Thielemier and Janetos look forward to serving BRTC in their new positions.
SimMom and Infant Join Nursing Department

SimMom has arrived to the BRTC campus. She is an advanced full-body birthing simulator with accurate anatomy and functionality and can facilitate training the student in the management of labor and delivery.

Tonya Hankins, Director of Practical Nursing explained, “Quick decision-making during child birth can mean the difference between life and death. Unfortunately, our nursing students do not always have the opportunity in the clinical setting to experience a delivery while they are on the floor or to see a variety of situations that could arise during labor and delivery.”

SimMom is easy to use and adaptable, allowing instructors to accommodate individual student or team learning needs at basic or advanced levels.

SimMom gives birth to Birthing Baby, a full-term newborn manikin. This adds standardization to every training session allowing instructors to concentrate on evaluating students. Students can assist in different birthing positions, including a normal vaginal delivery, a breech delivery, a Cesarean section, and birthing complications for the mother and/or the baby.

“SimMom will benefit both the Practical Nursing and Registered Nursing students,” stated Ramonda Housh, Division Chair of Allied Health. SimMom comes with a touch-screen patient monitor that will allow students to see fetal heart rhythms, a webcam to video scenarios, has IV access, is hands-free defibrillation capable, and can simulate a seizure. She will have her own birthing suite in the new Health Science Complex.

“We plan to host a Baby Shower for SimMom and her infant soon,” explained Hankins. “We will be sending out invitations with a list of needed supplies and everyone attending will have the opportunity to submit a name for the baby and we will draw the winning name!”

Students Give Back

In the midst of finals and the rush of the holiday season many BRTC students gave up their personal time and resources to help others.

Rotaract volunteered to be bell ringers with the Salvation Army. They spend hours in the cold to make sure others in need would be able to get help when it is needed most.

Phi Beta Lambda (PBL) collected food to benefit Mission Outreach in Paragould as part of the Student Government Association’s food challenge. PBL received 208 canned and boxed food items. They even gave up group funds to ensure enough food was collected.

Dr. Sandy Baltz’s drawing, design, and painting classes donated 118 original art pieces to the residents of Randolph County Nursing Home. Students wanted to make sure the residents had a gift for Christmas as well as something that would dress up their rooms.

Prince Among Slaves

The Eddie Mae Herron Center (EMHC) will show Prince Among Slaves Thursday, February 12 at 6 p.m. This movie was made possible by a grant that Black River Technical College collaborated with the EMHC and was awarded. The Muslim Journeys Grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the American Library Association Public Programs Office gives books and movies to libraries in order to familiarize the public with Islam and the cultural heritage of Islamic civilizations around the world. The grant was awarded to 125 libraries in the United States.

The film is the true story of Abdul Rahman Ibrahima, a Fulbe Muslim of elite ancestry, who was captured in an ambush and sold to English slavers. He was enslaved in the United States in 1788 in Mississippi.

According to legends, Abdul Rahman told the farmer who purchased him that he was an African prince and that his father would pay for his return. The offer was refused and Abdul Rahman worked on the plantation, married, and fathered nine children.

After forty years in America, he won his freedom and was able to return to Africa in 1828. Abdul Rahman’s story shows a West African society during the transatlantic slave trade, an American plantation at the beginning of the cotton boom, how the early American republic responded to slavery. Abdul Rahman built a dignified life despite slavery and was even able to negotiate his family’s release from bondage. Many of his descendants still live in Mississippi as well as other parts of the United States.

The film is based on the book, Prince Among Slaves, by Terry Alford. The book can be checked out at the BRTC Library.

The Student Watch Research Study is sponsored by the National Association of College Stores Foundation. Each participating school has one $100 winner chosen from those students who complete the survey. One student among all the participating colleges will receive $1,000. This survey is conducted twice a year to study different aspects of the college stores in higher education.
